

forefront of inclusiveness, there are still many systemic biases. For example, the Dewey Decimal system has been under fire for its organization of books. Christian books are given more attention and detail than non-Christian with some religions being relegated to “mysticism and magic.” Our Technical Services Manager, Charle Ricci, confirmed that she has seen professional literature on the topic and is monitoring the topic.

Another inclusivity topic discussed was “decolonizing library spaces.” A simple example is to look at the library walls. Are the posters and paintings reflective of the community by representing/including all citizens? Library staff have had discussions about this for Northampton Free Library in that the paintings on the wall, while nice artwork, are not inclusive. This is why I have been hesitant to have any permanent art or history displays in the new Regional Library. A responsible evaluation process needs to be in place.

Bullard also posed the question about inclusiveness in gatherings and meetings. Are there some people who are in attendance, but are not participating? From my personal experience, if I feel like I am not heard, not given a chance to talk, or people talk over me, I will stop participating. Consider that this may be a reason why it is hard to recruit diverse board members and volunteers. Have you noticed that a meeting participant never or rarely comments, as if they are sitting in the shadows? How can we make our work and meeting environment more inclusive and comfortable for people to participate?

The presentation highlighted how libraries need to look at whether we are welcoming on many levels: in hiring, programs, board development, space use, policies, and more. As we develop our strategic plan, we need to consider how a Diversity Statement fits into the plan and whether our goals do minimize systemic biases and promote inclusiveness for our community.

If you would like to learn more, Charle Ricci has created a great Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion book list on ShoreCat.

materials for those with vision impairment. This has been accomplished through a selection of high contrast, black and white board books, as well as a new collection of children's books featuring a large print font, both of which are excellent supplements to the library's standard print materials.

Additionally, the new picture books that were purchased with this donation highlight children who are blind, as well as seeing-eye and service dogs, and provide a window into the lives of those with low to no vision.

The purchase of DVD video recordings of popular children's stories that include read-along subtitles will provide a wonderful multi-sensory experience for children learning to read, or for those are working to improve their reading abilities. The new audiobooks purchased with this donation will allow listeners of all visual abilities to enjoy a story. This gift has also made it possible to purchase 22 Vox Books, which are hardcover books with an attached sound player.

Because of the substantial nature of this donation, our librarians were able to expand upon the core focus of vision impairment and select additional materials that explore a wide range of disabilities. Here are a few subjects covered with the newly purchased materials:

- Intellectual and developmental disabilities such as Down Syndrome and Cerebral Palsy
- Neurotypical children and children with autism
- Non-verbal children
- The Deaf and Hard of Hearing
- Learning disabilities and Dyslexia
- Sensory Processing Disorder
- Wheelchair users and children with physical disabilities

Many of the new materials in this collection will benefit children who may be striving to overcome obstacles in their journey to literacy, due to physical, intellectual, or developmental disabilities. The high contrast, large font, and auditory nature of many of these new items will increase reading comprehension and visual perception. This donation will also allow children of all abilities to see themselves in these stories, and know that they are not alone in their struggle.

Additionally, these fictional and non-fictional accounts of individuals experiencing disabilities will increase the awareness of Shore children about the differing capabilities of others. By providing an entry into the lives of those in the disability community, these library materials can help to spark empathy and kindness. The positive impact of this generous gift will resonate through the lives of Shore children for years to come, and the ESPL couldn't be more grateful.

Local History Services

Stacia Childers, LH Specialist

Accomac, Onancock, Wachapreague – everyday we encounter place names that remind us of the people who were the Eastern Shore of Virginia’s only human residents prior to European contact. The Heritage Center at Eastern Shore Public Library has several resources available for researching the history and cultures of Native Americans in Accomack and Northampton counties. Below is a very brief survey of some of those resources.

There are several gazetteers in the Eastern Shore Room for researching place names like those above, including the very thorough and well annotated Powhatan Indian Place Names in Tidewater Virginia by Martha W. McCartney and Helen C. Rountree. Rountree is the recognized authority on the tribes of Eastern Virginia and her book Eastern Shore Indians of Virginia and Maryland is the best place to start for information on those who lived on the Shore as well as the Powhatan Confederacy that they were linked to. Rountree is professor emerita of Anthropology at Old Dominion University and has written several books on this subject which can be found at ESPL.

The Heritage Center also has several papers by C. A. Weslager, a writer and historian of Delaware whose research covered the cultures of the entire Delmarva Peninsula. Of particular interest is the paper he presented to the Eastern Shore of Virginia Historical Society at Central High School in 1959 entitled The Accomac and Accohannock Indians From Early Relations which was printed by Francis Latimer’s Hickory House Press in 2001.

Race and class in colonial Virginia : Indians, Englishmen, and Africans on the Eastern Shore During the Seventeenth Century by J. Douglas Deal is a classic for understanding how the different cultures coexisted on Virginia’s Eastern Shore. And Pocahontas and the English Boys: Caught Between Cultures in Early Virginia tells of four key youths and the influence of their cross-cultural relationships, including Eastern Shore settler Thomas Savage, who as a boy was given to Powhatan by Captain Christopher Newport.

November is also Virginia Archaeology Month and ESPL has items that view the Shore's original inhabitants through the lens of their material culture. A Study of First People of the Eastern Shore: Archaeological Evaluation of the Thomas Wharf Site (44NH1), Northampton County, Virginia and The Emerging Story of Long-Term Human Adaptation on Virginia's Eastern Shore: Results of an 'Artifacts Road Show' hosted by the Nature Conservancy, both by Dennis Blanton, are a good start.

After European settlement of the Eastern Shore, the documentary evidence helps us understand how the multiple cultures coexisted. The late historian Frances Latimer writes about the Gingaskins in reference to her own family tree in The Journal of a Multiracial Family : Six Generations of the Eastern Shore Francis Family, and Kirk Mariner gives a history of the Gingaskin reservation in Slave and Free on Virginia's Eastern Shore: From the Revolution to the Civil War.

Mariner also created a timeline of events, a "Who's Who" of Native Americans appearing in various sources, and a timeline of conflicts between colonists and the Shore's Native American population. This valuable resource is the first text item from the Heritage Center's Kirk C. Mariner Collection that has been digitized and it is now available on our website here: <https://espl.org/genealogy/secondary-sources/>

New Shelving Arrives!

Forty units of brand-new children's shelving has arrived at the Accomac library. The brightly colored shelving is on casters, so that library staff can move the units to open up space in the Children's Room for flexibility in programming. Several of the units have cute die-cut end-panels for added visual interest.

The shelving was funded with a USDA Rural Development Community Facilities Grant matched with funds from the ESVA Community Foundation.

Youth Services

Tiffany Flores, Youth Services Librarian

Throughout the month of October, Tiffany Flores did a 'Hallow-Read Reading Challenge' featuring art and reading tasks that participants could do to earn prizes. By the end of the month, there were 73 participants including an entire classroom from Northampton High School. While using Beanstack has seen some slow use, it seems like the community is finally starting to get into the routine of using it. Tiffany Flores hopes that there will be continual growth with those who sign-up and a lot more participation. Beanstack is used for the online Summer Reading Challenge, so growing engagement is important.

On October 9th, Cara Burton and Tiffany Flores visited Tangier's Muddy Toes Public Library to do an origami program for the youth. Flores planned and purchased materials to do origami and distribute both treats and crafts to the children of Tangier. Despite the gloomy weather, this program saw a lot of success serving about 40 people throughout the afternoon. The kids there enjoyed the craft, spending their time learning how to do origami, asking questions, and decorating their creations with stickers and markers. It was truly a successful day full of fun and crafts.

Eastern Shore Public Library visited Parksley Town Park on October 30th to participate in their Trunk and Treat event. Cara Burton and Tiffany Flores attended with Hannah Swimley and volunteers to pass out books, treats, and crafts into the evening. They were visited by many children in costumes ranging from princesses to pirates and everything between. The library table was visited by about 200 children and 100 adults. This outreach event remind children that reading is sweet!

Halloween this year was again a bit different. We didn't have our usual Trunk or Treat; but we did make Halloween themed Take and Make Bags for the children. These bags continue to be very popular, and we usually give out about 50 bags. Sharon Silvey works hard to research and gather a variety of fun and educational activities.

Our Little Libraries, purchased by the Friends of Cape Charles Memorial Library, were very busy all summer and they continue to be busy in October. The influence of little libraries is spreading and there are several little libraries in people's yard. Little libraries allow people the opportunity to always be able to get a book to read.

This month we had some visitors from the crew of the tall ship Mystic Whaler. One of the perks of being a harbor town is we often have visits from crew members while their boats are docked.

ESPL Staff handing out snacks and books in the Parksley Town Park.

Library staff handing out books at community events is a great way to reach families who do not regularly visit the library.

Chincoteague Island Library

Karen Sharp, Library Manager

Chincoteague Island Library is experiencing a “new” normalcy as time progresses. There have been changes and adaptations made in order to meet our patrons’ and the community’s needs. The “fruit” of which continues to blossom. CIL has an increase in our patron/visitor counts that average about 32 per day. However, CIL’s patron computer usage has been low. Circulation has increased.

“Lubbock’s Learners”, CIL’s Summer Reading Challenge Program, held a kick-off party on May 27th from 3 to 6PM. There were 27 in attendance, with about 20 young readers who signed up. Before the party, we had 20 signed up on-line. The following day, we added 5 more.

In addition to our Summer Reading Program, CIL will be featuring other interactive programs for children. For Pre-Schoolers, the library will be open for parents to read to their children. CIL will be offering coloring pages and crafts to enjoy. Young Explorers, in grades 3 through 5, will be meeting in the Theatre Annex located across from the library. These programs will begin July 1st through August 12th from 10 to 11AM. CIL has some special programs scheduled over the Summer: ZOO 2YOU on June 21st, Magician Rob Westcott will be performing July 12th at 7PM at the Island Theatre (joining the library with this venture is CIAO), and the Blue Sky Puppets may perform on a Monday evening during the Summer with details in discussion with CIAO.

CIL has scheduled a Sunset Cruise for Thursday, June 17th at 6PM. Tickets are $50 per person which includes refreshments and music performed by Troy and Clare Outten. Reservations are being made directly by calling Daisey’s Island Cruises at 757-336-5556.

CIL’s Board will meet on Friday, June 11th. Board President, Linda Ryan, has sent a board report to share.

Northampton Free Library

Hannah Swimley, Branch Manager

During the month of October, many exciting things happened. Northampton Free Library (NFL) started opening up on Saturdays again from 9:00 am – 1:00 p.m. Staff are working hard to ensure that there are two people present every Saturday at both locations. Multiple displays were put up and taken down during the month as well, including a display for Banned Books week and for Hispanic Heritage month. There were multiple Halloween displays put up as well, two in the children's section and one in the central part of the library.

An American Girl Doll display was also set up. This is a display specifically to encourage children to read the book series and learn about the history that is shown throughout them. The American Girl Doll Series aims to teach History through the eyes of the young girls who are in the historical time periods covered. The books cover history from about 1764 up until 1987- for the strictly historical series. These books cover a wide range of topics including, but not limited to, poverty, slavery, animal abuse and child labor; all in an appropriate way for young children to understand. This display was set up with the assistance of a patron, who created all of the clothes and loaned display items. We are very grateful for the chance to have such an exciting display up in NFL.

Tiffany Flores, the Youth Librarian, and Hannah Swimley, the Branch manager at NFL, attended the Virginia Library Associations Conference for 2021. The conference this year was offered virtually as well as in person, and both librarians decided to attend it virtually as a result of COVID numbers. The conference was very educational, and both librarians attended different webinars throughout the 3-day event.
